

The original Bluenose sank off the coast of Haiti in 1946, but a replica, Bluenose II was launched in 1963. The ship became a symbol of Canada's east coast. She was given to the government of Nova Scotia in 1971 and still serves as an ambassador for the province and Canada.

