

Muskox: As one of Canada's oldest mammals, whose relatives lived with mammoths and mastodons, muskox is well adapted to the north. This defensive position used to fend off predators helps keep the animals warm as well. These vegetarians have become symbolic of the desolation of the tundra.

