

Remembrance Day is recognized in Canada to pay tribute to all those who sacrificed their lives during military service. The poppy has become the symbol that commemorates these people. The poem In Flanders Fields by John McCrae helped the poppy to become a popular symbol.

